

Non-Traditional Bio (more about what I do)

Garrett is a financial advocate helping people recover cash, build wealth, and take control of their personal finances. Garrett knows that true wealth isn't just about dollars. His approach effectively marries personal development to personal finance, so that his clients not only have the financial resources to live their ideal lives, but actually know what their unique vision for happiness and financial freedom looks like, so that their personal finances can be orchestrated in a way that supports that vision.

Garrett's programs teach people how to integrate the principles of economics and corporate finance into their own personal finances, so that they can benefit from the system in the same manner than large banks and corporations do (rather than fall victim to the system like most Americans). In an attempt to describe what Garrett does, some people refer to his work as "wealth coaching" or "financial planning", but those who have actually experienced his guidance directly know that it goes way beyond that.

What you can expect when working with Garrett is to actually be listened to! Garrett believes that for someone to give advice and recommend strategies BEFORE understanding what someone's ideal vision looks like is pointless at best, and fraudulent at its worst. Garrett teaches that it is imperative to first understand the limiting paradigms that create poverty (in all its many forms—not just financially) and how to overcome them in their own personal lives in order to enjoy more money, love their job, improve their relationships and live the life they once only thought possible in their childhood.

He is also the creator of the popular New Rules to Get Rich program available via Nightingale Conant, the world's premier distributor of the best personal development programs available. Garrett created New Rules to Get Rich in order to empower individuals to turn their potential into cash and to share some of his hardest-learned lessons with others, so that they could take an easier and faster path to creating wealth than he sometimes has.

Garrett is also the author of the revolutionary financial book Killing Sacred Cows, a New York Times bestseller. Garrett wrote Killing Sacred Cows to help others reduce their exposure and risk in investing and to refute the junk advice so prevalent in the financial advising industry today that seriously limits people's ability to create and keep their wealth.

Garrett's personal strategy is simple: put the client first but that wasn't always the case early on. Once he realized this simple yet important distinction he quadrupled his own income in 365 days by focusing solely on building the wealth of his clients and no longer making his focus his personal net worth. As he helps his clients become wealthier, happier, and more successful, his own opportunities keep expanding. Garrett loves to show others how to simplify their investing and align their investments with purpose—a strategy that is hundreds of times more effective than the conventional investing strategies promoted by most financial institutions.

Garrett founded The Accredited Network, an award winning family of financial service providers in order to give his clients access to the depth of knowledge and true expertise that allows people to truly align their personal finances to support one's own unique plans and aspirations. The Accredited Network is a group of affiliated experts in every respective field of personal finance.

Garrett knows firsthand the challenges people are facing today. When others doubted his ability to go on after the unexpected death of his two close friends and business partners, he went on to build his firm into an award winning INC 500 business.

Garrett is a loyal and true friend who doesn't forget the people and places that have gotten him where he is today. Now serving as the youngest alumni on the alumni board at his Alma Mater, Southern Utah University, Garrett has donated enough money to sponsor the school's first big rock band homecoming performance with a Goo-Goo Dolls concert. Garrett also personally developed one of the university's most popular online personal finance courses.

With few exceptions, all of the leading mentors Garrett has hired have ended up going into business with him and/or hired him to mentor them! There is a reason for this. Garrett is bold, authentic, and you can count on his transparency. He loves to build relationships and connect people with other individuals and networks that can help each client exponentially increase their wealth. He's good at what he does.

It's not always easy, but Garrett doesn't believe that wealth creation has to be a long, difficult process. Personally, he has taken 158 days off in one year and increased his income by 158,000 dollars over the year before.

Garrett knows how to generate wealth and he knows how to effectively share his knowledge with others. He has helped individuals bring their companies back from the brink of failure and turn them into thriving businesses, prevented bankruptcies, and helped people find the resources to live their dreams.

Garrett has helped hundreds of people save and generate hundreds of millions of dollars, yet his biggest fans are still his wife Carrie and his two wonderful sons, Breck and Roman.

Garrett is not the right guy for you if:

- You have never invested before and are in total debt (start somewhere else)
- You are someone who believes you "can't teach an old dog new tricks"
- You who are ungrateful for their blessings and who have no desire to bring value to others
- You have NO understanding or use of basic technology (sorry)